

140 Students Begin Salzburg Semester

A semester of study at the University of Salzburg, Austria, awaits 140 Brigham Young University students who left Feb. 6.

Included in the group will be students from the University of Utah, Ricks College and Utah State University.

The students will be accompanied by four B.Y.U. faculty members including Dr. Ray Hillam, Political Science Department; Dr. John Halliday, Music Department; Dr. Eugene Campbell, History Department; and Dr. Arthur Watkins, Language Department. Dr. Watkins is also acting as tour director.

Student officers chosen to lead the group include Dennis Taylor, president; Robert King, culture; Paul Carpenter, publicity; and Suzanne Jeppson, secretary.

The group left from the Salt Lake City airport on a KLM Royal Dutch jet transport. The trip took them to

New York City; Amsterdam, Holland; and Munich, Germany, where they boarded buses for Salzburg.

Prerequisite for the trip is at least two semesters of German. At Salzburg the students will take advanced courses in German, and study German and Austrian history, music, and European culture. Supplementary courses will be taught by the professors who accompany the group.

Upon arrival in Salzburg a reception is planned with several of the city dignitaries. According to Mr. Taylor, the program, which is the first of its kind from Utah, will give students a broader view of international problems and understanding.

The group will return on June 17. During their stay in Austria students will live in two hotels and various private homes.

Many side trips are planned for the group during their visit.
